Thinkorswim vs td ameritrade reddit

TDAmeritrade vs. Interactive Brokers which do you prefer and why ?! don't know which firm to use...any suggestions ---Page 2 14 comments Which one has lower costs and a nicer layout etc, what do you thinks best?Page 2 12 comments My goal is to be doing options, particularly credit spreads with maybe some debit ones too, which do you recommend? I'm gonna be using $1k.Page 2 41 comments I'm currently using OandA for my demo account, didn't like Forex.com much at all, and just had the thought of checking out Thinkorswim by TD Ameritrade.I couldn't find much info on their website about forex, so I called and asked them questions. Here's what I found out:They don't have commissions, but they build in their cost into the spread (like many others)No charge to deposit or withdraw money (Nice, much better than OandA's $20 fee for withdrawing my gains)No other feesCustom scripting available in their charting software, which is built in! forgot to ask about minimum lot size, but I can call back and get that info.Page 2 38 comments I've been using TD Ameritrade's thinkorswim for a while now and I like it. It's got all the stuff I need to know (and a whole lot of junk studies and bells thrown in for good measure).Since I can't just download tastytrade and try it out, does anyone here who's traded options for at least a couple of years and has used both have an opinion on if it's better or at least as good?! ask because the thinkorswim platform is adquate but seems to be stagnate and can't do a few simple things like display short interest.If I want to try Tastytrade how can I get an invite?Also, my calculations indicate I save a little bit of money on commissions with TD Ameritrade. Do you think tastytrade's commissions will ever come down?Page 2 31 comments Cant login, cant place orders, cant change orderWTF? What is the point of a Broker if they keep having same issue's over and over again??Please recommend a new broker?? I'm currently using Robinhood right now as my trading platform. I'm thinking of either switching to Webull or one of these two.My question: Is Are TD Ameritrade and TOS 2 different platforms? I am a little confused. And which one is better? There is a trader app and like another one. I can't tell the difference So I currently have an account with fidelity where I invest long term in stocks with a bit of swing trading, and I would like to get into options. I have heard that Fidelity's active trader pro is not the best, especially for Mac users (me). Is it worth it to open an account with TD Ameritrade to get access to their thinkorswim platform? Should I switch over to TD completely? Any advice welcome, thanks.Page 2 21 comments Like many of you, I got impacted with no trading after starting bell. Currently, I am evaluating other options such as Ameritrade, Webull. I am a new trader and I started with RH because was my first find and got a referral from friends, but after this outage and limitations I truly evaluating moving to a different brokerOne thing that I liked about RH is the instant account which if I understand correctly it is similar to a margin account where I can have $1,000 as instant cash for up to $1,000 deposit. I believe Webull has a similar type of perc not sure about TD Ameritrade? Suggestions are accepted.Page 2 24 comments
